

PROGRAM CUTS IN THE FEDERAL BUDGET: STATE BY STATE DATA

The President has submitted his budget for the next fiscal year to Congress. This irresponsible budget proposal would eliminate or significantly reduce funding for critical domestic programs such as food stamps, child care, and Medicaid; eliminate funding for many educational programs that help prepare low-income students for college, promote drug free schools, and target low-income children at risk of illiteracy; and reduce the nation's overall investment in the health and wellness of its people.

The federal budget is not just an accounting tool--it is a statement about our priorities and our values as a nation. And with this budget, the President is clearly setting his priorities, which are completely out-of-step with the priorities of hard-working Americans struggling to make ends meet.

The President's budget merely shifts funding problems to the states, which have already pared back health care, education, child care and other services. More cuts are inevitable if federal resources are cut. But that doesn't mean the need for health care, education, and child care will be eliminated. It means that states will be under more pressure to provide services with fewer resources.

Sen. Judd Gregg (R-NH), chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, said, "Difficult debates and choices are at our doorstep." But state and local governments are the ones who have to make the difficult choices as a result of the federal government's fiscal irresponsibility. Governors, state legislators, and mayors will have to decide which seniors and children will be denied health care or which hard working high school students are denied student loans to help them afford college tuition. Will they cut vital services or raise taxes and fees?

If Congress passes a budget that includes the kind of programs cuts the President's budget proposes, the consequences for the state will be severe. Listed below are just some of the program cuts we can expect to see under the President's budget, broken down by state.

ALABAMA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Alabama. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Alabama will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Alabama in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Alabama will lose nearly $175 million in total elementary and secondary education spending¹;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by almost $120 million in Alabama;
- Alabama school improvement programs will lose more than $65 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by almost $100 million in Alabama.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in Alabama face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Alabama will lose $10.5 million in WIC funding, and more than 10,000 people will be cut from the program;
- In Alabama, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose nearly $54 million;
- Nearly 500 children in Alabama will lose access to Head Start in 2006², and 2,100 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Alabama, 5,400 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Alabama for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- More than 5,000 families in Alabama will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by almost $1.5 million in Alabama; and
- In Alabama, Community Development programs will be cut by almost $125 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Alabama for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Alabama.

- Alabama will lose almost $4 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Alabama will be cut by more than $644 million³; and
- More than 41,000 children or almost 6,500 seniors could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Alabama would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Alabama will spend more than $180 million for the proposed increase in military spending⁴; and
- $1.5 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Alabama.

ALASKA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Alaska. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Alaska will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Alaska in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Alaska will lose more than $102 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by almost $24 million in Alaska;
- Alaska school improvement programs will lose more than $20 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by almost $18 million in Alaska.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in Alaska face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Alaska will lose almost $3 million in WIC funding, and more than 2,000 people will be cut from the program;
- In Alaska, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $6 million;
- More than 50 children in Alaska will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 200 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Alaska, 800 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Alaska for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 700 families in Alaska will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by almost $1 million in Alaska; and
- In Alaska, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $14 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Alaska for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Alaska.

- Alaska will lose $300,000 in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Alaska will be cut by more than $154 million; and
- 3,400 children or 1,000 seniors could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Alaska would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Alaska will spend more than $38 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- Almost $273 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Alaska.

ARIZONA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Arizona. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Arizona will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Arizona in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Arizona will lose more than $264 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by $118 million in Arizona;
- Arizona school improvement programs will lose almost $71 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $113 million in Arizona.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Arizona face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Arizona will lose almost $16 million in WIC funding, and 12,700 people will be cut from the program;
- In Arizona, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $52 million;
- 370 children in Arizona will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 1,700 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Arizona, 4,800 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Arizona for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 3,600 families in Arizona will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $700,000 in Arizona; and
- In Arizona, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $141 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Arizona for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Arizona.

- Arizona will lose $6.2 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Arizona will be cut by almost $1 billion; and
- Almost 39,000 children or more than 7,500 seniors could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Arizona would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Arizona will spend more than $252 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $2 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Arizona.

ARKANSAS

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Arkansas. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Arkansas will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Arkansas in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Arkansas will lose more than $110 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $75 million in Arkansas;
- Arkansas school improvement programs will lose almost $43 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $61 million in Arkansas.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Arkansas face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Arkansas will lose $7.5 million in WIC funding, and 7,500 people will be cut from the program;
- In Arkansas, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $32 million;
- More than 300 children in Arkansas will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 1,400 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Arkansas, 1,700 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Arkansas for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 4,000 families in Arkansas will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by more than $1 million in Arkansas; and
- In Arkansas, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $73 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Arkansas for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Arkansas.

- Arkansas will nearly $2 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Arkansas will be cut by more than $560 million; and
- 22,000 children or 5,700 seniors could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Arkansas would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Arkansas will spend more than $168 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $1.3 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Arkansas.

CALIFORNIA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in California. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since California will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in California in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- California will lose more than $1.2 billion in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by almost $816 million in California;
- California school improvement programs will lose almost $479 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $694 million in California.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in California face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- California will lose more than $113 million in WIC funding, and nearly 109,000 people will be cut from the program;
- In California, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $415 million;
- Nearly 2,800 children in California will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and almost 13,000 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In California, nearly 30,000 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in California for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Almost 53,000 families in California will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by more than $7.5 million in California; and
- In California, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $1.1 billion.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in California for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in California.

- California will lose almost $76 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for California will be cut by more than $4.5 billion; and
- More than 228,000 children or almost 59,000 seniors could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in California would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- California will spend $2.4 billion for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- Almost $20 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from California.

COLORADO

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Colorado. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Colorado will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Colorado in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Colorado will lose more than $146 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by almost $100 million in Colorado;
- Colorado school improvement programs will lose more than $45 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by almost $74 million in Colorado.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Colorado face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Colorado will lose more than $6.5 million in WIC funding, and 7,000 people will be cut from the program;
- In Colorado, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose nearly $35 million;
- Nearly 300 children in Colorado will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 1,300 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Colorado, 3,100 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Colorado for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Nearly 5,000 families in Colorado will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $2.7 million in Colorado; and
- In Colorado, Community Development programs will be cut by almost $95 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Colorado for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Colorado.

- Colorado will lose more than $4 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Colorado will be cut by almost $355 million; and
- More than 10,000 children or almost 2,500 seniors in Colorado could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Colorado would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Colorado will spend more than $290 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $2.3 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Colorado.

CONNECTICUT

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Connecticut. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Connecticut will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Connecticut in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Connecticut will lose more than $123 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by almost $88 million in Connecticut;
- Connecticut school improvement programs will lose more than $37 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by almost $53 million in Connecticut.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Connecticut face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Connecticut will lose more than $4.5 million in WIC funding, and 4,400 people will be cut from the program;
- In Connecticut, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose nearly $26 million;
- Nearly 200 children in Connecticut will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 900 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Connecticut, 2,000 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Connecticut for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- More than 6,000 families in Connecticut will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $3.5 million in Connecticut; and
- In Connecticut, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $101 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Connecticut for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Connecticut.

- Connecticut will lose more than $9 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Connecticut will be cut by almost $499 million; and
- More than 14,500 children or 1,700 seniors in Connecticut could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Connecticut would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Connecticut will spend more than $460 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $3.6 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Connecticut.

DELAWARE

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Delaware. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Delaware will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Delaware in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Delaware will lose more than $40 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $22 million in Delaware;
- Delaware school improvement programs will lose more than $20 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by almost $22 million in Delaware.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Delaware face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Delaware will lose almost $1.5 million in WIC funding, and 1,500 people will be cut from the program;
- In Delaware, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose $6.6 million;
- More than 60 children in Delaware will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 300 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Delaware, 1,400 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Delaware for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 800 families in Delaware will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $500,000 in Delaware; and
- In Delaware, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $21 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Delaware for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Delaware.

- Delaware will lose almost $2 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Delaware will be cut by almost $109 million; and
- 3,300 children or 700 seniors in Delaware could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Delaware would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Delaware will spend nearly $109 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $853 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Delaware.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in the District of Columbia. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since the District of Columbia will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in the District of Columbia in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- The District of Columbia will lose $30 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $11 million in the District of Columbia;
- The District of Columbia school improvement programs will lose more than $20 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by $19 million in the District of Columbia.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in the District of Columbia face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- The District of Columbia will lose $1.7 million in WIC funding, and 1,400 people will be cut from the program;
- In the District of Columbia, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose $12.2 million;
- 95 children in the District of Columbia will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 400 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In the District of Columbia, 2,300 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in the District of Columbia for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 2,000 families in the District of Columbia will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $500,000 in the District of Columbia; and
- In the District of Columbia, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $59 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in the District of Columbia for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in the District of Columbia.

- The District of Columbia will lose more than $15 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for the District of Columbia will be cut by almost $216 million; and
- 5,500 children or 1,200 seniors in the District of Columbia could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in the District of Columbia would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- The District of Columbia will spend more than $129 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $694 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from the District of Columbia.

FLORIDA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Florida. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Florida will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Florida in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Florida will lose more than $565 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $414 million in Florida;
- Florida school improvement programs will lose more than $182 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $320 million in Florida.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in Florida face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Florida will lose $31 million in WIC funding, and 31,400 people will be cut from the program;
- In Florida, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $133 million;
- Nearly 1000 children in Florida will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 4,600 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Florida, 22,600 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Florida for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Almost 16,000 families in Florida will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $2.2 million in Florida; and
- In Florida, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $390 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Florida for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Florida.

- Florida will lose almost $62 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Florida will be cut by more than $2 billion; and
- Almost 99,000 children or 20,000 seniors in Florida could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Florida would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Florida will spend $1 billion for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- Almost $8 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Florida.

GEORGIA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Georgia. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Georgia will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Georgia in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Georgia will lose $308 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $206 million in Georgia;
- Georgia school improvement programs will lose almost $115 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by almost $174 million in Georgia.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in Georgia face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Georgia will lose more than $20 million in WIC funding, and 21,800 people will be cut from the program;
- In Georgia, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $85 million;
- More than 650 children in Georgia will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 3100 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Georgia, 8,200 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Georgia for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 8,700 families in Georgia will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by nearly $2 million in Georgia; and
- In Georgia, Community Development programs will be cut by almost $212 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Georgia for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Georgia.

- Georgia will lose $17.5 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Georgia will be cut by almost $1.1 billion; and
- 51,800 children or 10,700 seniors in Georgia could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Georgia would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Georgia will spend nearly $551 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $4.5 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Georgia.

HAWAII

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Hawaii. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Hawaii will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Hawaii in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Hawaii will lose more than $73 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by almost $27 million in Hawaii;
- Hawaii school improvement programs will lose more than $20 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $27 million in Hawaii.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in Hawaii face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Hawaii will lose almost $4 million in WIC funding, and 2,800 people will be cut from the program;
- In Hawaii, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose $11.6 million;
- Almost 90 children in Hawaii will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 400 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Hawaii, 1,800 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Hawaii for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 2,200 families in Hawaii will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $200,000 in Hawaii; and
- In Hawaii, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $38 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Hawaii for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Hawaii.

- Hawaii will lose more than $1 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Hawaii will be cut by more than $147 million; and
- 4,700 children or 1,400 seniors in Hawaii could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Hawaii would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Hawaii will spend more than $59 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $472 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Hawaii.

IDAHO

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Idaho. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Idaho will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Idaho in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Idaho will lose more than $59 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $36 million in Idaho;
- Idaho school improvement programs will lose more than $21 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $30 million in Idaho.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in Idaho face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Idaho will lose $2.7 million in WIC funding, and 3,100 people will be cut from the program;
- In Idaho, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose $11.7 million;
- More than 80 children in Idaho will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 400 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Idaho, 1,100 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Idaho for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 1,100 families in Idaho will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $1 million in Idaho; and
- In Idaho, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $31 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Idaho for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Idaho.

- Idaho will lose $300,000 in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Idaho will be cut by almost $182 million; and
- 9,100 children or 1,100 seniors in Idaho could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Idaho would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Idaho will spend more than $51 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $405 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Idaho.

ILLINOIS

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Illinois. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Illinois will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Illinois in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Illinois will lose more than $477 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $335 million in Illinois;
- Illinois school improvement programs will lose nearly $163 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $227 million in Illinois.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in Illinois face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Illinois will lose almost $24 million in WIC funding, and 23,200 people will be cut from the program;
- In Illinois, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose $135 million;
- More than 1,100 children in Illinois will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 5,200 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Illinois, 23,000 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Illinois for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Nearly 16,000 families in Illinois will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by almost $10 million in Illinois; and
- In Illinois, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $447 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Illinois for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Illinois.

- Illinois will lose more than $20 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Illinois will be cut by more than $1.2 billion; and
- 49,300 children or 9,000 seniors in Illinois could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Illinois would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Illinois will spend $1 billion for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $8 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Illinois.

INDIANA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Indiana. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Indiana will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Indiana in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Indiana will lose more than $220 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by $169 million in Indiana;
- Indiana school improvement programs will lose more than $62 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $122 million in Indiana.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Indiana face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Indiana will lose almost $10 million in WIC funding, and 11,000 people will be cut from the program;
- In Indiana, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $49 million;
- Almost 400 children in Indiana will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 1,900 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Indiana, 4,600 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Indiana for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 6,600 families in Indiana will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $4.3 million in Indiana; and
- In Indiana, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $167 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Indiana for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Indiana.

- Indiana will lose almost $4 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Indiana will be cut by nearly $853 million; and
- 33,100 children or 5,100 seniors in Indiana could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Indiana would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Indiana will spend nearly $293 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $2.5 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Indiana.

IOWA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Iowa. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Iowa will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Iowa in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Iowa will lose nearly $109 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $80 million in Iowa;
- Iowa school improvement programs will lose more than $32 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by nearly $58 million in Iowa.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Iowa face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Iowa will lose more than $5 million in WIC funding, and 5,600 people will be cut from the program;
- In Iowa, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $26 million;
- 216 children in Iowa will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 1,000 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Iowa, 2,000 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Iowa for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 3,800 families in Iowa will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $3.1 million in Iowa; and
- In Iowa, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $100 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Iowa for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Iowa.

- Iowa will lose $700,000 in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Iowa will be cut by more than $386 million; and
- 14,100 children or 2,600 seniors in Iowa could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Iowa would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Iowa will spend nearly $139 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $1.1 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Iowa.

KANSAS

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Kansas. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Kansas will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Kansas in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Kansas will lose more than $111 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $71 million in Kansas;
- Kansas school improvement programs will lose more than $33 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by almost $53 million in Kansas.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in Kansas face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Kansas will lose more than $5 million in WIC funding, and 5,400 people will be cut from the program;
- In Kansas, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose almost $26 million;
- More than 220 children in Kansas will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 1,000 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Kansas, 2,100 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Kansas for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 2,000 families in Kansas will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $4.3 million in Kansas; and
- In Kansas, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $167 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Kansas for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Kansas.

- Kansas will lose almost $1.5 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Kansas will be cut by nearly $321 million; and
- 14,300 children or 1,900 seniors in Kansas could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Kansas would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Kansas will spend $154 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $1.2 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Kansas.

KENTUCKY

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Kentucky. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Kentucky will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Kentucky in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Kentucky will lose more than $159 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $107 million in Kentucky;
- Kentucky school improvement programs will lose more than $63 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $91 million in Kentucky.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Kentucky face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Kentucky will lose more than $9.5 million in WIC funding, and nearly 10,000 people will be cut from the program;
- In Kentucky, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose almost $54 million;
- More than 450 children in Kentucky will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 2,100 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Kentucky, 5,800 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Kentucky for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 5,600 families in Kentucky will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $2.3 million in Kentucky; and
- In Kentucky, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $115 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Kentucky for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Kentucky.

- Kentucky will lose $2.3 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Kentucky will be cut by more than $722 million; and
- 21,800 children or 6,000 seniors in Kentucky could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Kentucky would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Kentucky will spend nearly $160 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $1.3 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Kentucky.

LOUISIANA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Louisiana. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Louisiana will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Louisiana in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Louisiana will lose almost $204 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $125 million in Louisiana;
- Louisiana school improvement programs will lose almost $90 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by nearly $106 million in Louisiana.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Louisiana face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Louisiana will lose more than $12 million in WIC funding, and nearly 12,000 people will be cut from the program;
- In Louisiana, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose almost $73 million;
- Almost 620 children in Louisiana will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 2,900 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Louisiana, 7,500 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Louisiana for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 6,800 families in Louisiana will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $1.5 million in Louisiana; and
- In Louisiana, Community Development programs will be cut by $162 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Louisiana for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Louisiana.

- Louisiana will lose $9.5 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Louisiana will be cut by nearly $847 million; and
- 51,400 children or 9,000 seniors in Louisiana could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Louisiana would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Louisiana will spend more than $176 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $1.3 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Louisiana.

MAINE

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Maine. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Maine will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Maine in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Maine will lose more than $59 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by almost $37 million in Maine;
- Maine school improvement programs will lose more than $24 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $26 million in Maine.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in Maine face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Maine will lose more than $1.5 million in WIC funding, and nearly 1,900 people will be cut from the program;
- In Maine, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose almost $14 million;
- More than 110 children in Maine will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 500 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Maine, 800 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Maine for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 2,200 families in Maine will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $2.2 million in Maine; and
- In Maine, Community Development programs will be cut by almost $49 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Maine for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Maine.

- Maine will lose $500,000 in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Maine will be cut by more than $342 million; and
- 13,400 children or 2,500 seniors in Maine could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Maine would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Maine will spend more than $57 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $440 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Maine.

MARYLAND

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Maryland. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Maryland will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Maryland in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Maryland will lose $183 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by almost $133 million in Maryland;
- Maryland school improvement programs will lose more than $56 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $87 million in Maryland.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Maryland face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Maryland will lose more than $8 million in WIC funding, and 9,000 people will be cut from the program;
- In Maryland, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose almost $40 million;
- Almost 300 children in Maryland will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 1,300 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Maryland, 4,300 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Maryland for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 7,900 families in Maryland will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $2.7 million in Maryland; and
- In Maryland, Community Development programs will be cut by almost $134 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Maryland for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Maryland.

- Maryland will lose $6.4 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Maryland will be cut by more than $623 million; and
- 15,900 children or 3,700 seniors in Maryland could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Maryland would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Maryland will spend more than $381 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $3 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Maryland.

MASSACHUSETTS

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Massachusetts. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Massachusetts will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Massachusetts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Massachusetts will lose nearly $244 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by almost $187 million in Massachusetts;
- Massachusetts school improvement programs will lose more than $70 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by almost $97 million in Massachusetts.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Massachusetts face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Massachusetts will lose nearly $9 million in WIC funding, and 9,700 people will be cut from the program;
- In Massachusetts, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose $54 million;
- 364 children in Massachusetts will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 1,700 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Massachusetts, 6,200 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Massachusetts for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 12,600 families in Massachusetts will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $6.9 million in Massachusetts; and
- In Massachusetts, Community Development programs will be cut by almost $280 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Massachusetts for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Massachusetts.

- Massachusetts will lose almost $12 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Massachusetts will be cut by more than $1.2 billion; and
- 43,600 children or 7,100 seniors in Massachusetts could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Massachusetts would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Massachusetts will spend more than $555 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $4.5 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Massachusetts.

MICHIGAN

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Michigan. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Michigan will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Michigan in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Michigan will lose nearly $380 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $263 million in Michigan;
- Michigan school improvement programs will lose more than $140 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $187 million in Michigan.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in Michigan face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Michigan will lose more than $16.5 million in WIC funding, and 18,600 people will be cut from the program;
- In Michigan, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $117 million;
- Almost 1000 children in Michigan will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 4,600 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Michigan, 16,500 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Michigan for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 8,600 families in Michigan will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $9.1 million in Michigan; and
- In Michigan, Community Development programs will be cut by almost $321 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Michigan for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Michigan.

- Michigan will lose $8.1 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Michigan will be cut by more than $102 billion; and
- 71,900 children or 10,400 seniors in Michigan could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Michigan would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Michigan will spend more than $539 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $4.6 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Michigan.

MINNESOTA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Minnesota. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Minnesota will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Minnesota in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Minnesota will lose nearly $176 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $126 million in Minnesota;
- Minnesota school improvement programs will lose almost $49 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $85 million in Minnesota.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in Minnesota face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Minnesota will lose almost $9 million in WIC funding, and 9,800 people will be cut from the program;
- In Minnesota, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $36 million;
- Almost 290 children in Minnesota will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 1,300 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Minnesota, 5,000 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Minnesota for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 5,400 families in Minnesota will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $6.6 million in Minnesota; and
- In Minnesota, Community Development programs will be cut by almost $146 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Minnesota for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Minnesota.

- Minnesota will lose $2.4 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Minnesota will be cut by more than $712 million; and
- 20,400 children or 3,200 seniors in Minnesota could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Minnesota would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Minnesota will spend more than $448 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $3.4 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Minnesota.

MISSISSIPPI

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Mississippi. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Mississippi will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Mississippi in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Mississippi will lose nearly $132 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by almost $79 million in Mississippi;
- Mississippi school improvement programs will lose almost $61 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by nearly $69 million in Mississippi.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in Mississippi face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Mississippi will lose $8.4 million in WIC funding, and 8,600 people will be cut from the program;
- In Mississippi, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $79 million;
- Almost 750 children in Mississippi will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 3,500 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Mississippi, 3,500 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Mississippi for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 3,200 families in Mississippi will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $1.2 million in Mississippi; and
- In Mississippi, Community Development programs will be cut by almost $94 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Mississippi for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Mississippi.

- Mississippi will lose $3.2 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Mississippi will be cut by almost $680 million; and
- 36,200 children or 7,500 seniors in Mississippi could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Mississippi would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Mississippi will spend more than $87 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $703 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Mississippi.

MISSOURI

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Missouri. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Missouri will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Missouri in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Missouri will lose nearly $220 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by almost $149 million in Missouri;
- Missouri school improvement programs will lose almost $71 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by nearly $113 million in Missouri.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in Missouri face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Missouri will lose $10.3 million in WIC funding, and 11,200 people will be cut from the program;
- In Missouri, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose almost $60 million;
- Almost 500 children in Missouri will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 2,300 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Missouri, 6,100 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Missouri for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 7,100 families in Missouri will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $3.8 million in Missouri; and
- In Missouri, Community Development programs will be cut by almost $182 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Missouri for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Missouri.

- Missouri will lose $6 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Missouri will be cut by more than $1 billion; and
- 40,400 children or 7,300 seniors in Missouri could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Missouri would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Missouri will spend more than $349 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $2.7 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Missouri.

MONTANA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Montana. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Montana will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Montana in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Montana will lose more than $72 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by almost $25 million in Montana;
- Montana school improvement programs will lose more than $25 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $23 million in Montana.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in Montana face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Montana will lose $1.9 million in WIC funding, and 1,800 people will be cut from the program;
- In Montana, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose almost $11 million;
- More than 80 children in Montana will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 400 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Montana, 700 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Montana for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 1,000 families in Montana will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $1.2 million in Montana; and
- In Montana, Community Development programs will be cut by almost $25 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Montana for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Montana.

- Montana will lose $300,000 in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Montana will be cut by more than $133 million; and
- 3,600 children or 800 seniors in Montana could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Montana would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Montana will spend more than $31 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $240 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Montana.

NEBRASKA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Nebraska. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Nebraska will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Nebraska in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Nebraska will lose $85 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $49 million in Nebraska;
- Nebraska school improvement programs will lose more than $27 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by almost $34 million in Nebraska.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Nebraska face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Nebraska will lose $3.2 million in WIC funding, and 3,300 people will be cut from the program;
- In Nebraska, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $18 million;
- More than 145 children in Nebraska will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 700 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Nebraska, 1,600 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Nebraska for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 2,000 families in Nebraska will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $1.5 million in Nebraska; and
- In Nebraska, Community Development programs will be cut by almost $54 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Nebraska for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Nebraska.

- Nebraska will lose $600,000 in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Nebraska will be cut by almost $238 million; and
- 7,900 children or 1,400 seniors in Nebraska could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Nebraska would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Nebraska will spend more than $140 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $878 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Nebraska.

NEVADA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Nevada. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Nevada will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Nevada in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Nevada will lose more than $65 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $44 million in Nevada;
- Nevada school improvement programs will lose nearly $23 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by almost $41 million in Nevada.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in Nevada face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Nevada will lose $3.7 million in WIC funding, and 3,800 people will be cut from the program;
- In Nevada, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose almost $13 million;
- More than 75 children in Nevada will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 400 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Nevada, 900 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Nevada for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 2,100 families in Nevada will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $300,000 in Nevada; and
- In Nevada, Community Development programs will be cut by almost $64 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Nevada for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Nevada.

- Nevada will lose $3.7 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Nevada will be cut by more than $166 million; and
- 6,300 children or 2,000 seniors in Nevada could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Nevada would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Nevada will spend almost $175 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $1.2 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Nevada.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in New Hampshire. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since New Hampshire will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in New Hampshire in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- New Hampshire will lose nearly $52 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by almost $32 million in New Hampshire;
- New Hampshire school improvement programs will lose more than $22 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by almost $26 million in New Hampshire.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in New Hampshire face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- New Hampshire will lose $1.3 million in WIC funding, and 1,400 people will be cut from the program;
- In New Hampshire, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose $7 million;
- More than 45 children in New Hampshire will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 200 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In New Hampshire, 1,000 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in New Hampshire for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 1,600 families in New Hampshire will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $1.3 million in New Hampshire; and
- In New Hampshire, Community Development programs will be cut by almost $34 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in New Hampshire for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in New Hampshire.

- New Hampshire will lose $400,000 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for New Hampshire will be cut by more than $165 million; and
- 4,100 children or 700 seniors in New Hampshire could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in New Hampshire would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- New Hampshire will spend almost $88 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $680 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from New Hampshire.

NEW JERSEY

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in New Jersey. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since New Jersey will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in New Jersey in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- New Jersey will lose nearly $319 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by almost $238 million in New Jersey;
- New Jersey school improvement programs will lose almost $88 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $137 million in New Jersey.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in New Jersey face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- New Jersey will lose $12 million in WIC funding, and 12,000 people will be cut from the program;
- In New Jersey, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose almost $65 million;
- More than 420 children in New Jersey will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 2,000 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In New Jersey, 5,200 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in New Jersey for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 11,500 families in New Jersey will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $6.4 million in New Jersey; and
- In New Jersey, Community Development programs will be cut by almost $280 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in New Jersey for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in New Jersey.

- New Jersey will lose more than $26 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for New Jersey will be cut by more than $1 billion; and
- 34,300 children or 6,400 seniors in New Jersey could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in New Jersey would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- New Jersey will spend more than $849 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $6.7 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from New Jersey.

NEW MEXICO

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in New Mexico. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since New Mexico will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in New Mexico in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- New Mexico will lose more than $140 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by $60 million in New Mexico;
- New Mexico school improvement programs will lose almost $36 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by nearly $44 million in New Mexico.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in New Mexico face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- New Mexico will lose $5.4 million in WIC funding, and 5,100 people will be cut from the program;
- In New Mexico, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose $26 million;
- Almost 215 children in New Mexico will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 1,000 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In New Mexico, 2,900 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in New Mexico for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 2,400 families in New Mexico will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by almost $1 million in New Mexico; and
- In New Mexico, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $50 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in New Mexico for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in New Mexico.

- New Mexico will lose more than $1 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for New Mexico will be cut by more than $444 million; and
- 15,700 children or 4,000 seniors in New Mexico could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in New Mexico would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- New Mexico will spend almost $65 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- Nearly $513 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from New Mexico.

NEW YORK

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in New York. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since New York will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in New York in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- New York will lose almost $765 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $506 million in New York;
- New York school improvement programs will lose more than $323 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by nearly $337 million in New York.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in New York face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- New York will lose almost $44 million in WIC funding, and almost 40,000 people will be cut from the program;
- In New York, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose almost $216 million;
- Almost 1,400 children in New York will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 6,400 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In New York, nearly 20,000 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in New York for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 36,300 families in New York will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $21 million in New York; and
- In New York, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $860 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in New York for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in New York.

- New York will lose more than $101 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for New York will be cut by more than $6.1 billion; and
- 163,400 children or 24,400 seniors in New York could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in New York would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- New York will spend $1.6 billion for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $13 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from New York.

NORTH CAROLINA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in North Carolina. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since North Carolina will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in North Carolina in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- North Carolina will lose almost $292 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $208 million in North Carolina;
- North Carolina school improvement programs will lose $92 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by nearly $166 million in North Carolina.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in North Carolina face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- North Carolina will lose more than $18 million in WIC funding, and 18,400 people will be cut from the program;
- In North Carolina, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose almost $72 million;
- Almost 540 children in North Carolina will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 2,500 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In North Carolina, 14,400 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in North Carolina for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Almost 10,000 families in North Carolina will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $3.1 million in North Carolina; and
- In North Carolina, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $208 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in North Carolina for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in North Carolina.

- North Carolina will lose more than $7 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for North Carolina will be cut by almost $1.4 billion; and
- Almost 60,000 children or 12,400 seniors in North Carolina could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in North Carolina would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- North Carolina will spend almost $462 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $3.6 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from North Carolina.

NORTH DAKOTA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in North Dakota. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since North Dakota will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in North Dakota in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- North Dakota will lose $53 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $18 million in North Dakota;
- North Dakota school improvement programs will lose almost $21 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $18 million in North Dakota.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in North Dakota face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- North Dakota will lose $1.4 million in WIC funding, and 1,100 people will be cut from the program;
- In North Dakota, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose almost $9 million;
- 66 children in North Dakota will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 300 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In North Dakota, 800 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in North Dakota for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 1,300 families in North Dakota will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $1.3 million in North Dakota; and
- In North Dakota, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $19 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in North Dakota for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in North Dakota.

- North Dakota will lose $100,000 in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for North Dakota will be cut by almost $90 million; and
- 3,200 children or 500 seniors in North Dakota could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in North Dakota would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- North Dakota will spend $25 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- Almost $195 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from North Dakota.

OHIO

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Ohio. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Ohio will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Ohio in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Ohio will lose more than $401 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by almost $288 million in Ohio;
- Ohio school improvement programs will lose more than $135 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by almost $216 million in Ohio.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in Ohio face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Ohio will lose more than $20 million in WIC funding, and 22,500 people will be cut from the program;
- In Ohio, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose almost $124 million;
- 1,065 children in Ohio will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 5,000 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Ohio, 12,600 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Ohio for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- 15,500 families in Ohio will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by $8.5 million in Ohio; and
- In Ohio, Community Development programs will be cut by almost $395 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Ohio for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Ohio.

- Ohio will lose almost $7 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Ohio will be cut by more than $1.8 billion; and
- 78,600 children or 8,100 seniors in Ohio could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Ohio would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Ohio will spend almost $723 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- $5.7 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Ohio.

OKLAHOMA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Oklahoma. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Oklahoma will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Oklahoma in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Oklahoma will lose more than $169 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by nearly $97 million in Oklahoma;
- Oklahoma school improvement programs will lose more than $55 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $75 million in Oklahoma.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Oklahoma face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Oklahoma will lose nearly $9 million in WIC funding, and 7,800 people will be cut from the program;
- In Oklahoma, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose roughly $40 million;
- Roughly 377 children in Oklahoma will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 1,800 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Oklahoma, 4,200 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Oklahoma for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Roughly 4,000 families in Oklahoma will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by more than $1 million in Oklahoma; and
- In Oklahoma, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $80 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Oklahoma for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Oklahoma.

- Oklahoma will lose roughly $2 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Oklahoma will be cut by more than $496 million; and
- 24,300 children or 5,300 seniors in Oklahoma could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Oklahoma would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Oklahoma will spend more than $234 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $1 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Oklahoma.

OREGON

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Oregon. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Oregon will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Oregon in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Oregon will lose more than $120 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by nearly $85 million in Oregon;
- Oregon school improvement programs will lose more than $41 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $67 million in Oregon.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Oregon face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Oregon will lose more than $8 million in WIC funding, and 8,400 people will be cut from the program;
- In Oregon, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $30 million;
- Roughly 253 children in Oregon will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 1,100 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Oregon, 3,400 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Oregon for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Roughly 5,600 families in Oregon will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by more than $2 million in Oregon; and
- In Oregon, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $102 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Oregon for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Oregon.

- Oregon will lose more than $3 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Oregon will be cut by more than $475 million; and
- 16,000 children or 3,700 seniors in Oregon could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Oregon would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Oregon will spend more than $156 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $1 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Oregon.

PENNSYLVANIA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Pennsylvania. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Pennsylvania will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Pennsylvania in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Pennsylvania will lose roughly $399 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $281 million in Pennsylvania;
- Pennsylvania school improvement programs will lose nearly $146 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $223 million in Pennsylvania.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Pennsylvania face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Pennsylvania will lose nearly $18 million in WIC funding, and 20,200 people will be cut from the program;
- In Pennsylvania, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose nearly $115 million;
- Roughly 866 children in Pennsylvania will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 4,000 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Pennsylvania, 9,900 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Pennsylvania for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Roughly 14,600 families in Pennsylvania will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by more than $11 million in Pennsylvania; and
- In Pennsylvania, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $527 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Pennsylvania for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Pennsylvania.

- Pennsylvania will lose more than $21 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Pennsylvania will be cut by more than $2 billion; and
- 73,100 children or 15,500 seniors in Pennsylvania could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Pennsylvania would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Pennsylvania will spend more than $735 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and

- More than $6 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Pennsylvania.

RHODE ISLAND

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Rhode Island. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Rhode Island will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Rhode Island in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Rhode Island will lose more than $49 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $29 million in Rhode Island;
- Rhode Island school improvement programs will lose more than $20 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $27 million in Rhode Island.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Rhode Island face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Rhode Island will lose nearly $2 million in WIC funding, and 1,900 people will be cut from the program;
- In Rhode Island, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $11 million;
- Roughly 88 children in Rhode Island will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 400 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Rhode Island, 1,400 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Rhode Island for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Roughly 1,700 families in Rhode Island will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by more than $1 million in Rhode Island; and
- In Rhode Island, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $42 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Rhode Island for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Rhode Island.

- Rhode Island will lose more than $1 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Rhode Island will be cut by more than $249 million; and
- 8,400 children or 1,200 seniors in Rhode Island could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Rhode Island would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Rhode Island will spend roughly $81 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- Roughly $608 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Rhode Island.

SOUTH CAROLINA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in South Carolina. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since South Carolina will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in South Carolina in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- South Carolina will lose more than $161 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $116 million in South Carolina;
- South Carolina school improvement programs will lose more than $53 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by roughly $90 million in South Carolina.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in South Carolina face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- South Carolina will lose more than $8 million in WIC funding, and 9,000 people will be cut from the program;
- In South Carolina, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $41 million;
- Roughly 343 children in South Carolina will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 1,600 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In South Carolina, 3,200 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in South Carolina for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Roughly 4,200 families in South Carolina will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by more than $1 million in South Carolina; and
- In South Carolina, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $100 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in South Carolina for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in South Carolina.

- South Carolina will lose more than $6 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for South Carolina will be cut by more than $695 million; and
- 26,500 children or 6,700 seniors in South Carolina could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in South Carolina would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- South Carolina will spend more than $152 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and

- More than $1 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from South Carolina.

SOUTH DAKOTA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in South Dakota. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since South Dakota will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in South Dakota in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- South Dakota will lose more than $65 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $21 million in South Dakota;
- South Dakota school improvement programs will lose more than $21 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $19 million in South Dakota.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in South Dakota face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- South Dakota will lose more than $13 million in WIC funding, and 1,700 people will be cut from the program;
- In South Dakota, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $9 million;
- Roughly 79 children in South Dakota will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 400 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In South Dakota, 600 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in South Dakota for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Roughly 1,000 families in South Dakota will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by more than $1 million in South Dakota; and
- In South Dakota, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $22 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in South Dakota for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in South Dakota.

- South Dakota will lose roughly $200 thousand in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for South Dakota will be cut by more than $110 million; and
- 4,000 children or 800 seniors in South Dakota could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in South Dakota would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- South Dakota will spend more than $31 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $243 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from South Dakota.

TENNESSEE

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Tennessee. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Tennessee will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Tennessee in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Tennessee will lose more than $211 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $153 million in Tennessee;
- Tennessee school improvement programs will lose more than $69 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $119 million in Tennessee.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Tennessee face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Tennessee will lose more than $13 million in WIC funding, and 13,100 people will be cut from the program;
- In Tennessee, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $60 million;
- Roughly 461 children in Tennessee will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 2,100 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Tennessee, 7,800 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Tennessee for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Roughly 5,500 families in Tennessee will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by more than $2 million in Tennessee; and
- In Tennessee, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $130 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Tennessee for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Tennessee.

- Tennessee will lose more than $7 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Tennessee will be cut by more than $1 billion; and
- 45,500 children or 8,900 seniors in Tennessee could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Tennessee would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Tennessee will spend more than $297 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $2 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Tennessee.

TEXAS

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Texas. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Texas will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Texas in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Texas will lose more than $942 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $633 million in Texas;
- Texas school improvement programs will lose more than $339 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $472 million in Texas.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Texas face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Texas will lose more than $63 million in WIC funding, and 72,900 people will be cut from the program;
- In Texas, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $241 million;
- Roughly 1,900 children in Texas will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 8,800 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Texas, 15,900 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Texas for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Roughly 25,000 families in Texas will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by more than $3 million in Texas; and
- In Texas, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $592 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Texas for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Texas.

- Texas will lose more than $38 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Texas will be cut by more than $2 billion; and
- 111,600 children or 26,900 seniors in Texas could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Texas would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Texas will spend more than $1 billion for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $11 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Texas.

UTAH

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Utah. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Utah will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Utah in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Utah will lose more than $99 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $71 million in Utah;
- Utah school improvement programs will lose nearly $26 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by nearly $54 million in Utah.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Utah face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Utah will lose more than $4 million in WIC funding, and 5,600 people will be cut from the program;
- In Utah, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $19 million;
- Roughly 155 children in Utah will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 700 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Utah, 1,300 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Utah for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Roughly 1,800 families in Utah will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by more than $1 million in Utah; and
- In Utah, Community Development programs will be cut by roughly $55 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Utah for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Utah.

- Utah will lose more than $1 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Utah will be cut by more than $253 million; and
- 8,400 children or 1,900 seniors in Utah could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Utah would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Utah will spend more than $91 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $714 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Utah.

VERMONT

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Vermont. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Vermont will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Vermont in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Vermont will lose more than $35 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $17 million in Vermont;
- Vermont school improvement programs will lose more than $20 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $17 million in Vermont.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Vermont face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Vermont will lose more than $1 million in WIC funding, and 1,400 people will be cut from the program;
- In Vermont, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $6 million;
- Roughly 44 children in Vermont will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 200 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Vermont, 600 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Vermont for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Roughly 1,000 families in Vermont will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by roughly $1 million in Vermont; and
- In Vermont, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $23 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Vermont for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Vermont.

- Vermont will lose roughly $300 thousand in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Vermont will be cut by more than $130 million; and
- 3,900 children or 1,500 seniors in Vermont could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Vermont would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Vermont will spend roughly $31 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $233 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Vermont.

VIRGINIA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Virginia. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Virginia will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Virginia in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Virginia will lose more than $269 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $186 million in Virginia;
- Virginia school improvement programs will lose more than $70 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $130 million in Virginia.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Virginia face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Virginia will lose more than $10 million in WIC funding, and 11,100 people will be cut from the program;
- In Virginia, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $50 million;
- Roughly 386 children in Virginia will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 1,800 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Virginia, 3,400 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Virginia for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Roughly 7,800 families in Virginia will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by more than $3 million in Virginia; and
- In Virginia, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $148 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Virginia for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Virginia.

- Virginia will lose more than $8 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Virginia will be cut by more than $586 million; and
- 25,700 children or 5,700 seniors in Virginia could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Virginia would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Virginia will spend more than $557 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $4 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Virginia.

WASHINGTON

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Washington. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Washington will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Washington in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Washington will lose more than $233 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $146 million in Washington;
- Washington school improvement programs will lose more than $64 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $106 million in Washington.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Washington face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Washington will lose $14 million in WIC funding, and 13,400 people will be cut from the program;
- In Washington, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $51 million;
- Roughly 308 children in Washington will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 1,400 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Washington, 8,700 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Washington for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Roughly 8,000 families in Washington will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by more than $3 million in Washington; and
- In Washington, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $166 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Washington for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Washington.

- Washington will lose more than $5 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Washington will be cut by more than $747 million; and
- 35,200 children or 6,400 seniors in Washington could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Washington would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Washington will spend more than $455 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $4 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Washington.

WEST VIRGINIA

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in West Virginia. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since West Virginia will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in West Virginia in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- West Virginia will lose more than $79 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $50 million in West Virginia;
- West Virginia school improvement programs will lose $35 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $41 million in West Virginia.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in West Virginia face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- West Virginia will lose more than $4 million in WIC funding, and 4,200 people will be cut from the program;
- In West Virginia, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $25 million;
- Roughly 214 children in West Virginia will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 1,000 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In West Virginia, 1,900 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in West Virginia for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Roughly 2,600 families in West Virginia will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by more than $1 million in West Virginia; and
- In West Virginia, Community Development programs will be cut by more than $71 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in West Virginia for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in West Virginia.

- West Virginia will lose roughly $700 thousand in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for West Virginia will be cut by more than $377 million; and
- 15,900 children or 2,600 seniors in West Virginia could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in West Virginia would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- West Virginia will spend more than $55 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $431 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from West Virginia.

WISCONSIN

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Wisconsin. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Wisconsin will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Wisconsin in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Wisconsin will lose more than $197 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $138 million in Wisconsin;
- Wisconsin school improvement programs will lose more than $61 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by more than $102 million in Wisconsin.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low-income families in Wisconsin face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Wisconsin will lose more than $8 million in WIC funding, and 9,300 people will be cut from the program;
- In Wisconsin, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $46 million;
- Roughly 378 children in Wisconsin will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 1,800 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Wisconsin, 4,500 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Wisconsin for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Roughly 4,900 families in Wisconsin will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by nearly $6 million in Wisconsin; and
- In Wisconsin, Community Development programs will be cut by nearly $160 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Wisconsin for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Wisconsin.

- Wisconsin will lose nearly $2 million in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Wisconsin will be cut by more than $643 million; and
- 28,700 children or 3,500 seniors in Wisconsin could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Wisconsin would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Wisconsin will spend more than $319 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $2.6 billion of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Wisconsin.

WYOMING

The President's budget makes drastic cuts in funding for programs that matter to families in Wyoming. These cuts will shift responsibility for funding these priorities onto the already cash-strapped state. Since Wyoming will not be able to provide the same level of services with less federal funding, the budget cuts will force the state to either reduce funding for schools and leave more people hungry, homeless, cold and uninsured, or to raise state taxes.

EDUCATION: The President's budget would reduce funding for education and training programs in Wyoming in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger in later years. No program, including K-12, will be spared.

- Wyoming will lose more than $41 million in total elementary and secondary education spending;
- Funding for special education programs will be cut by more than $18 million in Wyoming;
- Wyoming school improvement programs will lose more than $20 million; and
- Vocational and adult education programs will be cut by nearly $17 million in Wyoming.

FAMILY SERVICES: Programs providing needed services to low- income families in Wyoming face major cuts in 2006, with the cuts getting bigger over time. Under the President's budget proposal, the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants, and Children (WIC), programs for abused and neglected children, Head Start, and child care assistance programs all face steep cuts.

- Wyoming will lose $1 million in WIC funding, and 1,000 people will be cut from the program;
- In Wyoming, Children and Family services (including Head Start and programs for abused and neglected children) would lose more than $6 million;
- Roughly 50 children in Wyoming will lose access to Head Start in 2006, and 200 will lose access to the program in 2010; and
- In Wyoming, 700 children will lose child care assistance in 2009.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS: The President's budget targets housing and community development programs in Wyoming for funding cuts in 2006 and beyond.

- Roughly 400 families in Wyoming will lose rental assistance vouchers;
- The Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) will be cut by roughly half a million dollars in Wyoming; and
- In Wyoming, Community Development programs will be cut by $15 million.

HEALTH: The budget would cut funding in Wyoming for HIV/AIDS treatment services, including funding to help those with HIV/AIDS purchase drugs. President Bush has also proposed major cuts to the Medicaid program in Wyoming.

- Wyoming will lose more than $100 thousand in HIV/AIDS funding;
- Medicaid funding for Wyoming will be cut by more than $61 million; and
- 2,600 children or 400 seniors in Wyoming could be covered by the Medicaid funding cuts proposed in 2010.

PENTAGON: While taxpayers in Wyoming would lose local services, they will pay increasingly more for the Pentagon.

- Wyoming will spend more than $35 million for the proposed increase in military spending; and
- More than $ 263 million of what Congress has so far allocated for the Iraq War will come from Wyoming.

¹ Unless otherwise specified, all data is from analysis done by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, see <http://www.cbpp.org/2-22-05bud-reportandtables.pdf>

² National Head Start Association, see <http://www.nhsa.org/download/research/SpReportEnrCuts.pdf>

³ All Medicaid data from Families USA, see http://www.familiesusa.org/site/PageServer?pagename=Budget_Battle_2006_splash

⁴ Pentagon spending figures from the National Priorities Project, see <http://www.nationalpriorities.org/impact05/budgetpub.html>